Learning Pottery Online:

Are you looking for a pottery class and interested in learning in your own home or from an experienced instructor outside your own community?

The E-Clay Project, in partnership with Studio on the Hill is working with a team of teachers and eight Guilds / Not -for- Profit studios to develop ways to teach online, interactive pottery courses.

An Intermediate wheel pilot project course is being offered in the winter session starting February 6th and runs thru 'til March 27th 2023, Mondays from 1pm to 3pm EST by Shaun P. Kelly (SoKo, sokopottery.com) Studio on the Hill Manager & Instructor.

Your course will have eight classes and is part of an evaluation project. Each course is being taught by an experienced teacher who is part of the team developing the best ways to teach pottery online in an interactive and dynamic way.

As a student, you too will be part of this exciting pilot project offering your insights about your experiences of taking this course. When you complete the courses and do the evaluation you will be given a $100 rebate. We value your input and hope you forgive any hiccup we encounter.

To register and review the course information and requirements, please contact Studio on the Hill at infostudio@fontbonneministries.ca. For more information about the e-Clay Project, please go to <https://www.e-claylearning.ca/>
